

AT NIGHT I FLY: THE PODCAST

A LIFE BEHIND AND BEYOND BARS

AT NIGHT I FLY is show by producer Matthew Schneeman and incarcerated poet Spoon Jackson.

Equal parts Ear Hustle, Radiolab, and Ten Things that Scare Me AT NIGHT I FLY dives inside and outside of Solano State prison to inspire awe through interviews, poetry, and field pieces.

Spoon Jackson grew up off of Route-66 in the Mojave desert in Barstow, CA. When he was just nineteen he was given a life sentence for murder, that was forty-two years ago. In the intervening years Spoon has become a poet, starred in Waiting for Godot, publishing poetry and a memoir, collaborated with Ani DiFranco, and cultivated friends and supporters like Samuel Beckett, Gloria Steinem, and Bill Erwin. He's still that quiet boy from the desert. He has spent a lifetime expanding his heart in a place he'll never call home. Reaching out through hot dusty concrete walls to a world to share his work with he has cultivated a remarkable life.
